

CLAN LAMONT SOCIETY of NORTH AMERICA

The Descent of Clan Lamont

As shown in "The Highland Clans" By Sir Sir Iain Moncreiffe of that Ilk

The Lyon Conjectural Tree

Royal Lyon borne or quartered in Arms.

Eochu 'Slaves-Lord', King of Tara, living 360 (nicknamed from slave-raids on Roman Britain), was head of the pagan sacral Iron Age royal family of the Gaels, that descended from ritual incarnations of their ancestral god-spirit Conn 'of the Hundred Battles', and was associated with the sacrificial slaying (in combat) of the divine king by his successor within the dynastic family

Niall 'of the Nine Hostages', High King of Ireland, living 400, asserted a titular suzerainty over all Ireland, his sons overthrowing Ulidian power in the North

Eogan, King of Ailech (in Northern Ireland), baptised personally by Saint Patrick, died 465

Muireadach, King of Ailech, died c. 480

Muircheartach, High King of Ireland 512-534, burnt to death while drunk

Domnall 'the Deceitful', joint King of Ireland 563-566, died of plague

Aedh 'of the Ague', High King of Ireland 604-612

Maelfithig, King of Ailech 628-630

Maelduin, King of Ailech 671-681, killed in battle

Fergal, High King of Ailech 710-722, killed in battle

Niall 'of the Showers', High King of Ireland 763-770, died a monk at Iona 778

Aedh 'the Dignified', High King of Ireland 797-819

Niall, High King of Ireland 833-846, drowned pursuing defeated Vikings

Aedh 'White-Hair', High King of Ireland 862-879 (married a daughter of Kenneth mac Alpin, King of Picts & Scots)

Niall 'Black-Knee', High King of Ireland 916-919, killed in battle against Norse king of Dublin

Muirchertach 'of the Leather Cloaks', King of Ailech 938-943, Royal Heir of Ireland, killed in battle against Dublin

Domnall O'Neill, High King of Ireland 956-980, first Irishman to assume what became an hereditary surname

Muirchertach O'Neill, joint Royal Heir of Ireland, killed in battle against Norse king of Dublin 977

Flaithbertach 'of the Pilgrim's Staff', King of Ailech 1004-1030 & 1033-1036 (went on Rome pilgrimage 1030)

Aedh 'the Handy', King of Ailech 1030-1033, Royal Heir of Ireland, died young

Domnall, King of Ulster 'with opposition' (ancestor of the last High King of Ireland, slain 1260, also of the Earls of Tyrone and The O'Neills of Clannaboy)

Conall 'Gulban', King of Tir-conaill (whose descendants formed the Kindred of Saint Columba', including several Saints and the hereditary Abbots of Iona, Kells & Dunkeld: also the Kings of Scots 1034-1286)

Fergus 'Long-Head'

Eirc

Sedna (ancestor of The O' Donnells of Tironaill)

Fedhlm
St. COLUMBA, died 597

